[Chime bell rings.]

M: Attention, Stonehaven High School students. This is your P.E. teacher, Mr. Palmer. As you know, we had heavy rain yesterday. Due to the wet ground on our school field, it's impossible to do sports activities outside as usual. It's very slippery and dangerous. So today, we've decided to change the location of the P.E. class for your safety. We'll have our P.E. class in the indoor gym instead of the school field. The time for the class is still the same. Please remember this important change, and be there on time. Thank you.

M: Good morning, Mia. You look so refreshed.

W: Hi, Mathew. Do you think so?

M: For sure. What's your secret?

W: Actually, I started wearing cotton pajamas recently. I think they help me sleep.

M: Cotton pajamas? Really?

W: Yes. They allow air to flow easily, giving skin more room to breathe.

M: That's interesting. I often feel hot and sweaty at night.

W: In that case, wearing cotton pajamas will help you sleep better.

M: Hmm, I guess you're right.

W: Also, cotton absorbs sweat well. You'll stay fresh all night.

M: I see. It sounds like they'll be helpful to me.

W: Yeah. Sleeping in cotton pajamas is great for a good night's sleep.

M: Okay, I think I'll give them a try.

M: Welcome to my show, Smart Talk. I'm Arthur, your friendly show host. Today, we'll talk about the importance of facing challenges to build confidence. Sometimes, we're too afraid to challenge ourselves and try something new. But remember, when you try something that you're not familiar with and face difficulties, you'll find strength you didn't even know you had. Through this process, you'll have valuable experience to learn more about yourself. As a result, you'll start to think that you can achieve anything. So, if you face challenges, you'll find yourself more confident than ever. Thank you for listening.
